Hell, no. We have to make him up ourselves, after all.

Not tonight?

Tonight is Friday, and bheer. And the Cowboy and Wonder Woman have promised to come, too.

Um. Then yes. But I might suck. :-(

There is rope, with me on the end. Think of this as my opportunity to return the favor for the times you've been on the end of the rope and I sucked.

Sucking is boring. And it hurts.

Yeah, I hear ya. (Except for Good Hurt vs. Bad Hurt. If you're doing it 'til it Bad Hurts, I will make the sad face at you. Since scolding just makes you stubborn. Stubborner. Hey, how long do you think I can keep this parenthetical statement going and still be relevant?)

I'm afraid it's all bad hurt, these days.

But at least I'm doing it.

Ohgawd, I dread being naggy. 8>P But good hurt builds strength; bad hurt does damage and prevents healing. I know, you already know that. I should shut up.

*sigh*

I dunno. It all hurts. But if I stop doing it, then I never get better, right?

Troof.

How do you think the landlord would feel about a hot tub in your living room? You don't need a couch; your friends could watch TV half-submerged.

Well, I know how I would feel about a hot tub in your living room. But I'm not sure I could fit that and a TV in my living room.

Went to my local science pub this week and heard this guy talk about How geckos stick and why we care. Turns out its photons - who knew? Saw video of the various robogecko. Also learned Tokay geckos are "more interested in revenge then escape", with some amusing anecdotes including a bite to the privates for a grad student (ouch!) (for those interested, locate your local sci cafe or sci pub)

Alright, doing Sci Pub at NSF is all kinds of awesome. Sometimes I'm jealous of where you live. Then again, I know about your area's traffic. ;->
